

Barkly Engineering Workplace Health and Safety Policy Statement

Barkly Engineering Management is committed to maintaining good health and safety of all its employees, sub-contractors and the public. We will use all practical means to provide and maintain a safe and healthy work environment by planning and organising our operations, so that the risk to people and damage to plant and equipment is minimised.

Barkly Engineering will be accountable in the areas of accident prevention and hazard control and will take all reasonable steps to eliminate and control the risks associated with such hazards.

Our objective will be to provide such instruction, information, supervision, training, retraining and education necessary to ensure all employees are able to carry out their work in such a way as to minimise the possibility of injury to themselves and to other people.

All employees will be encouraged to actively participate in safety awareness meetings and to make full use of our open communication.

Management will fully consider and investigate if necessary employee suggestions and observations, and take all practical action to reduce the risk of injury and illness to all its employees.

Barkly Engineering will ensure that all of its employees understand their responsibilities and obligations under Workplace Health and Safety Act 1995 and Regulation 2008 and the Mining and Quarrying Safety and Health Act 1999 and Mining and Quarrying Safety and Health Regulations 2001.
